Would You Rather: Back to School Edition

Read each pair aloud, or let students vote by moving to one side of the room. Ask three students to defend their choice.

Would you rather have a 3-day weekend every week?

O have a 6-week summer that never ends?
R

Would you rather be able to teleport anywhere?

O be able to pause time for 10 minutes a day?
R

Would you rather always know the answer in class?

O always have the perfect comeback?
R

Would you rather have unlimited snacks at school?

O have unlimited wifi anywhere?
R

Would you rather be the funniest person you know?

O be the smartest person you know?
R

Would you rather only do group projects?

O only do solo projects?
R

Would you rather have homework you love?

O have no homework but harder tests?
R

Would you rather be famous online?

O be respected by people you admire?
R

Get to Know You BINGO

Find a classmate who fits each box and have them sign it. First to complete a row, column, or diagonal calls BINGO. One signature per person.

TEACHER NOTE

These three games need zero prep and work in any classroom, grades 6 through 12. Use one a day for the first week, or all three on day one. They build the classroom community that makes the rest of the year easier.

Want the rest of your year ready to teach? Our store has full-year, exam-aligned curricula and test prep for AP and secondary, all print-and-teach. If something is not quite right for your students, leave us a note and we will update it for free.
